DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

2. Claims 1,3-10, 12-14 and 16-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. The claimed invention is not limited to a practical application. Viewed as a whole, the claimed invention merely distributes and executes the cross-correlations among the waveforms transmitted by the users.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1,3-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hertz et al., Hertz hereinafter (US patent number 5,917,829, newly cited).

Hertz teaches a receiver for receiving a plurality of spreaded signal by a plurality of users comprising: a plurality of correlators (36 fig. 4) for receiving the respective users waveforms; and cross-correlating the respective waveform from each users using a respective correlator as in claims 1 and 3.

Further to claim 4, Hertz also teaches that the received symbols are detected by the final detectors (39).

Hertz teaches that each of the correlators correlates a respective signal from each of the users, however he Hertz fails to teach is that the received signal (signal in figure 4) is partitioned substantially equal among the plurality of correlators corresponding to the respective users as in claim 1 and defining a metrics associated with each partitions in accord with the relation  $B=A_i-A_{i-1}$  as in claim 5.

Therefore it would have been obvious to one of an ordinary skill in the art to use the plurality of correlators assigned to each of the received signals by a plurality of users in order to cross-correlate the received waveform and detect the corresponding data at the time the invention was made.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. US patent number 6,975,666 issued to Affes et al. discloses a base station receiving a plurality of users data having a corresponding correlator for each of the users to correlate the received spread spectrum signal.
